

The Visual Field in Community Organizing “Visual Culture of the Americas 2010 Workshop”

If you... are a community organizer and want to learn more about using the visual field in your work or
are an activist
and want to know more about the visual field and how others are engaging with it or have great ideas and want to engage Academics/Students/Community Members with the work they are doing

we want to hear from you!

Background: Hosted by Brock University, in collaboration with SUNY at Buffalo, the Visual Culture of the Americas Workshop invites community organizers to join academics, activists, students and the general public in a full day discussion of the significance of the visual field to the Niagara- Buffalo Region. Specifically, this forum will address memory, conflict, violence, and urban politics using the visual as a medium and tool for conflict resolution.

Aim: The main goal of this forum is to provide a platform for participants who are already working in the visual field in the Niagara region to make connections. If you are new to this field, we invite you to join us for the day. The visual field includes works of visual artists in all media, documentary photography, graffiti, documentary film as well curatorial projects, reclaimed urban areas, ephemeral urban projects, protests, marches, strikes, monuments, heritage sites and public performances of memory, among others.

Involvement: If you are interested in engaging with the presenters in discussion, brain storming and general dialogue we want to hear from you.
